Gentlemen:

Some time ago, you wrote me you had made an extra set of uniforms for The Eagles, by mistake. You asked me at that time if I could use them. I wrote you I would contact you at the end of the season.

As things have developed, I am writing to ask you what they will cost, and to itemize just what the order consists of.

If I take them, will you be able to keep them for me until next season. I would want to pay for them right away however.

Thank you for taking care of the last order for balls so hastily. They arrived in time.

Very Truly Yours
